Odds and Ends of Gossip.

My Lady Fair.

Summer is coming by and by,
There's a misty blue in the far off sky,
There's a golden gleam in the sun's good night,
And a rosier glow in the morning light,
For Summer is coming.

Up from the hill there comes a shout,
The waters call, "We are out; we are out,"
As with gurgle of laughter, down the hill,
From its ice-grave rushes the dancing rill.
For Summer is coming.

In a single day the meadows are green,
Or sprinkled over with a silver sheen.
Spring beauties a-bloom, or within an hour,
The rosier hue of the sweet wind flower
For Summer is coming.

The cardinal flashes his wings so bright
A crimson line, swift in the sun's warm light.
The robin whistles a merry sweet lay,
And joy in my heart holds riot today,
For Summer is coming.

Oh, sky, bring forth your most radiant hue,
And little frill laugh, for your news is true.
No wonder the flowers spring out of the earth,
No wonder the birds are filled with such mirth,
For Summer is coming.

Summer incarnate, tender and true,
For Summer incarnate, dear-heart is you.
No wonder a heart is free from care,
It has waited long for My Lady fair,
And now the sweet song is everywhere
Summer is coming.
—Frances S. Riker.

TO GO WEST — There is a good deal of talk among some of the young farmers of the county and older ones too about going West—that land of so much promise—and taking chances in the great rush for a fortune. In a short time the U. S. government will open for settlement over three million acres of fertile farm lands. This vast extent of country lies between southwestern Oklahoma, Indian Territory proper and Texas. It has heretofore been known as the reservation of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians. For years this country has been almost uncultivated. The natives tilled a few acres, while large bodies were leased to cattlemen and the remainder was unoccupied. Ever since the settlement of Oklahoma pressure has been brought to bear upon the government to purchase this land and open it for settlement The government allowed an allotment of one hundred and sixty acres of land to every Indian brave, squaw and pappoose that belonged to these tribes, besides this we paid the Indians more than two millions dollars, a sum sufficient to allow every Indian man, woman and child that occupy the land the nice little sum of seven hundred and eleven dollars apiece.

TOBACCO—It is the time of year for the tobacco croppper to be making his preparations for the coming season and even now the white gleam of the canvass covered beds can be seen on many a hillside indicating the first preparations for the crop—that of growing the plants from seed. The indications are that the acreage of tobacco planted in this county this year will be large although that is a matter hard to ascertain with any degree of accuracy owing to the fact, that every fellow wants to conceal as much as his own plans for planting and to discourage his neighbor with the idea in view that the smaller the crop the bigger the price to be realized. The damp weather of the past few days has given the farmers a good opportunity to handle the old crop and as a consequence the barns are pretty well cleared and the shipments to the Louisville market this week have been heavy.

MRS. NATION — It seems from the way the Lexington papers speak of Mrs. Nation the famous Kansas saloon masher and her recent visit to the Bluegrass metropolis that she made a favorable impression and those who expected to see in her a howling Amazon with a hatchet ready to create a rough house were disappointed. Mrs. Nation left her hatchet in Kansas and under the direction of a manager she is making this tour as a conscientious and prayerful pleader in the cause of temperance. She is quite a success as a drawing card and crowded houses are the rule to the great satisfaction, doubtless, of the manager who is realizing handsomely in pushing a good thing along.

TATHAM—Tatham Springs, Washington county's famous health resort is to open for guests shortly. Mrs. Wornall who has been in charge of the hotel every year, except last season, since shortly after the hotel was built, will have the management again this season. Mrs. Wornall is the right woman in the right place when she is in charge at Tatham and her many friends all over the State will no doubt be glad to learn that she is able to resume her old position

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes. August Flowel still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Billousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis Nervous Prostration or Heart Failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Haydon & Robertson.

Bradley

A correspondent from Washington has learned from an absolutely reliable source that Ex-Gov. W. O Bradley will be appointed United States Judge of the Eastern Judicial district.

It was stated that Senator Deboe stood by his indorsement of S. J. Pugh of Ashland until President McKinley indicated that the best solution of the contest between Pugh and Cochran both of whom were strongly indorsed, would be to appoint Bradley.

To this Senator Deboe after some demur agreed. The chief reason for his agreeing to it would be the removal thereby of Bradley as a possible candidate in the United States senatorial race, and to a great extent leave the field clear for Deboe.

It is further given out that Tinsley will be appointed District Attorney for the new district, and S. Sharpe of Lexington, United States Marshal.

Powers and Howard

The Kentucky Court of Appeals reversed the verdict of the Scott and Franklin Circuit Courts in the case of Caleb Powers and James Howard, and granted them new trials. Chief Justice Paynter and Judges Hobson and White dissented in the Powers case, the opinion on which was written by Judge DuRelle. The court was unanimous in the reversal of the Howard case, but Chief Justice Paynter and Judge Hobson delivered seperate opinions, in which Judge White concured. Judge Cantrill's seventh instruction was emphasized by the majority as the principal ground for reversal in the powers case. The dissenting Judges held, there was no cuase to set aside the verdict, the points objected to being immaterial. Taylor's pardon of Powers was held to be void. Certain incompetent testimony and remarks of the Acting Commonwealth's Attorny were the grounds for the reversal of the verdict against Howard.

The Munday Sisters.

Every one has heard the sad story of the Munday sisters who lived their long lives of seclusion near Mayo in our county, and who passed into the unknown a month or so ago at the ripe old age of 90 odd. For seventy years they lived apart from the World, the one broken hearted and faithful to a faithless lover the other a sister, a sister whose deep sympathies bound her to the home of sorrow and bade her clug to her sister with an undying devotion that long, long years of patient watching. The sad story of their sorrow and suffering was never known to the world, but an occasional passeroy in the half century that came and went, caught occasional glimpses at the love mad and beautiful Woman who wore her bonnett night and day that the gaze of the curous might never fall on her glossy tresses. Why this was, no one knew, and the grave holds the secret. Since their death, relatives have taken charge of the home, and many an old keepsake of interest have they come across. Among other things were found $85.00 in paper money issued from the Northern Bank of Kentucky in 1842 and 1847, and signed by John Tilford, President, and M. T. Scott Cashier. Of course the money was outlawed years ago and it is worthless, but as a curio it is of considerable value. Then they came across several handsom old dress patterns, complete even to the thread and buttons, and were bought sixty years ago from F. G. Matheny, of Salvisa and it is sad, indeed, to think of the fears of the long ago that fell upon those garments never touched by the sissors.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Found Dead in Bed.

Chief Smith received notice Tuesday afternoon that Elmira Paxton who lives on the Cornishville pike opposite the negro cemetary had not been seen since Monday morning about 9 or 10 o'clock when he returned with a neighbor from gathering green s. The Chief, went atonce to the house indicated which he found locked. The house seemed deserted. He deterined to investigate further as none of those living near had heard of the woman's going away. He effected an entrece through the kitchen door and found the woman lying on the bed with her arms thrown over her head—dead. She had the appearance of having been dead many hours. The neighbors suppose that feeling fatigued from her hunt after greens she fastened the doors so as not to be disturbed and lay down on the bed to rest and take a nap, and died while asleep.

The jury summoned by Coroner R. B. Gibbs Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock found that she came to her death from hemorrage of the stomach as the testimony showed that she had been subject to this trouble for a long time.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

A BIT OF BUSINESS.

Turned His Rival's Purchase to His Own Account.

A short time ago the manager of one of the big stores in this city found that a rival establishment had just received a large consignment of a very fine quality of lace. Needless to say, that lace was also very expensive.

He immediately sent one of his subordinates over to the rival store with instructions to buy half a yard of the aforesaid lace. This he bundled up in a conspicuous position with a very legible price mark attached, and the price marked was very reasonable. When he gave some instructions to the girls behind the counter and retired to await developments.

Two shoppers soon happened along that way, and the piece of lace caught their attention.

"Isn't that just too beautiful!" exclaimed one of them.

But instead of answering her directly her companion grasped her by the arm and whispered excitedly, "Look at the price!"

In answer to their eager questions the shopgirl answered nonchalantly:

"That there lace? I don't think we've got any more. Wait a minute."

The two women waited while the girl consulted long and seriously with one of the buyers. The consultation was about a dance which was to take place that evening, but the would be customers never knew the difference. When it was over, the girl returned and informed them:

"Sorry, but we're all out of that lace. Guess you can get some over in Blank's, though," mentioning the rival establishment. The two women hurried away, fearing that the supply in the other store might also be exhausted before their arrival. It wasn't, but they did not buy any lace, and, furthermore, they advised all their friends to shop at Dash's, because the prices there are so reasonable. "But," they added, "you've got to get there early or the nicest things will be all sold out."—New York Sun.

THE BOY AND THE DOG

There is no truer friendship than that of the boy and the dog. There are no happier days to which the grown man may look back with tender regret for their passing than the days spent in the old home fields with the faithful four footed companion of youth. Confidence between boy and dog was perfect. The dog perhaps was not a thoroughbred and had come into the world minus a pedigree, but the boy accepted him for what he was and in the blessed ingenuousness of youth may even have found an element of added pride in the dog in some characteristic which he now knows was highly to the animal's discredit as determined by the bench show standards. And as for the dog, on his part, too, he took the boy for what he was, asking of him no more than that he should condescend to make of himself a demigod for unstinted confidence, affection and worship. If the scientists would devise a way to represent the care free happiness of boyhood days in some equivalent of foot pounds, the amount of it justly accredited to the companionship of boy and dog would be expressed in many tons.—Forest and Stream.

WAR STARTED BY GLASS OF WATER.

The war of the Spanish succession was caused by a contest between Austria and France as to whether an Austrian or a French prince should sit on the throne of Spain. The war had been determined on for several years before the death of the old King Charles II. but about the time of his death an English lady in Paris was raising a glass of water to her lips at a crowded reception. A French gentleman jostled against her and spilled the water on her dress. Her escort took up the matter, and a duel resulted, followed by so general a quarrel between the French and English residents that it was facetiously said the war was brought on by the upsetting of a glass of water.

The fire of a legal examination is a-hot one, but an accused person who stands its test doesn't often emerge with a character the better established.

An individual of somewhat doubtful appearance was applying for a situation as van driver. On being asked for references he mentioned one of the dealer's old hands, who was called in and questioned as to the applicant's honesty. The referee rubbed his chin meditatively for a moment and said:

"Honest? Well, guv'nor, his honesty's him proved again and again. Failing to take trifles, he's stole himself steadily and unchanged every time."

The applicant was not engaged.—London Tit-Bits.

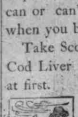
Consumption

is destruction of lung by a growing germ, precisely as moldy cheese is destruction of cheese by a growing germ.

If you kill the germ, you stop the consumption. You can or can't, according to when you begin.

Take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil: take a little at first.



The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

It acts as a food; it is the easiest food. Seems not to be food; makes you hungry; eating is comfortable. You grow strong-er. Take more; not too much; enough is as much as you like and agrees with you. Satisfy hunger with usual food; whatever you like and agrees with you.

When you are strong again, have recovered your strength---the germs are dead; you have killed them.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

Fremont's Ride.

A pretty story is told of how John C. Fremont informed his wife of the joyful news of his election as senator of California in 1850. The balloting of the delegates took place in San Jose, and Mrs. Fremont was at Monterey, and as a season of heavy rains was on there was but little prospect that her keen desire to know the result would find immediate gratification. Before a blazing fire that night sat Fremont's wife, her fingers for the first time fashioning a dress for herself on the trustworthy outlines of one that had been ripped up for the purpose. Her little daughter had been put to bed, and her companions for the evening were the Austrian woman who had replaced her two Indian servitors and her baby playing on the bearskin rug near the fire.

Besides the voice of the woman and an occasional chirrup from the baby she heard nothing but the storm without till the door opened and a man, dripping with rain, stood on the threshold and asked in consideration of his sorry plight if he might enter. It was Fremont. He had torn himself away from his bolting followers and ridden out into the thickest and storm to his wife, 70 miles away, that he had been elected to the United States senate. Though it was late in the night when he reached Monterey, he was in the saddle again before dawn and on his way back to San Jose, making in all a ride of 140 miles.—Argonaut.

The Red Flag.

The red button and the red flag have been the emblem of labor and revolution for more than 2,000 years. In the ancient world the favorite colors of the aristocracy were white and azure blue while red was plebeian. Minerva and Ceres, the goddesses of labor and agriculture, were always represented as dressed in flaming red, and the banners of the Greek and Roman trade unions were of the same color. The red flag nowhere in antiquity meant ferocity and slaughter, but rather typified the fact that all men, whether slaves or masters, had in their veins the same blood and in their nature the same humanity.

But in the frequent servile wars of Italy and Greece the red flag gradually became the emblem not of labor, but of revolt. At one time when the rebellious slaves and gladiators under Spartacus defeated three Roman armies the red flag was on the point of supplanting the eagle in the imperial city itself. It is related that the labor soldiers were so fanatically devoted to the red flag that it was the custom of the generals when in battle to hurl it into the enemy's ranks and so compel its devotees to rush forward and recover it.—New York Post.

A Bad Judge.

Some years ago King Edward VII. then Prince of Wales, was a guest at a country house in England, and, picking up a sporting paper in the billiard room one morning, was soon deep in its contents. A clergyman, also a guest, noticed this, and, sidling up, asked in a tone that was meant to convey to the royal highness that he was greatly interested in that paper.

The prince glanced around. "I never read anything I do not feel interested in," he remarked.

The clergyman, though, would not be denied. "Do you know, your royal highness, that one of my friends has lost hundreds of pounds by betting on horse racing and has never won anything?" he asked.

"Well," said the prince as he turned to another column, "he must have been a very bad judge of horseflesh."

"Save Me From My Friends."

This saying is commonly attributed to Voltaire, who at Ferney when pestered by professions of insincere friendship said, "I pray God to deliver me from my friends; I will defend myself from my enemies."

The thought, however, is attributed by the French to Marshal Villars, while Kant discovers it in an Italian proverb, and a German collection of proverbial wisdom gives it in a modified form. Antigonus, one of the generals of Alexander the Great, offered sacrifice that the gods might protect him from his friends and at the same time disclaiming he could look after his enemies himself. Churchill has something of the idea in the lines:

Cruelly his foes he dreads, but most his friends;
He hurts the most who lavishly commends.

The Rector's Prophecy.

A party of gentlemen, including Professor Bailey and Rector Roberts, a divine widely celebrated for his wit and the audacity of his puns, were crossing the campus of a well known university.

The reverend gentleman, commenting on the fact of his recent elevation to the greater dignity and the assumption of the more resounding title of a canon of the church, exclaimed, "And now that I am a canon I suppose I shall be a bigger bore than ever."

Early Silk Weavers.

Among the encouragements offered to silk weavers during the first century of the existence of this industry in Lyons was exemption from military service and taxation. So rapid was its development that in 1650 the weavers numbered 18,000, or 60,000 with affiliated pursuits.

In Print.

"I saw your name in print the other day," said one man to another who was very fond of notoriety.

"Where?" asked the other in a tremor of excitement.

"In the directory."—Exchange.

The world's record for skinning fish is held in Gloucester, Mass. The world's record for skinning lambs is held in Wall street, New York.—San Francisco Bulletin.

A Historic Throne.

The biggest episcopal throne in Europe is at the Exeter cathedral. Composed of the very best oak, with magnificent carving executed by the most expert designers of the day, the throne soars upward in beautiful tapering pinnacles, which rise up to the lofty roof of the sacred edifice. The throne is not only the biggest, but one of the oldest. It was saved from destruction by the ingenuity of the Cavaliers, who when the Roundheads marched on Exeter pulled down the throne and divided it into 235 pieces, one for every day of the year. The pieces were safely secured in many hiding places, and when peace was restored the pieces were put together again without the aid of a single nail.

A Wily Answer.

The shah of Persia once asked a group of his courtiers whom they thought the greatest man himself or his father. At first he could get no reply to so dangerous a question, the answer to which might cost the courtiers their heads.

At last a wily old courtier said, "Your father, sire, for although you are equal to your father in all other respects in this he is superior to you, that he had a greater son than any you have."

LION COFFEE

A LUXURY WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL!

Watch our next advertisement.

If you want to buy a lion whelp you wouldn't accept a kitten as a substitute, even if the dealer urges you.

Now, don't accept a substitute for

LION COFFEE.

It is bound to turn out a common yellow cat, with none of the strength of the lion.

You want LION COFFEE because it is LION COFFEE.

If, on the other hand, you want a coffee which, in order to hide imperfections, is "highly polished" with eggs and other preparations, then do not buy

LION COFFEE.

If LION COFFEE were common, ordinary stuff, coffee drinkers would'nt insist on having it. It is used in millions of homes because it is the best coffee in the world for the price. If you doubt this, take a single package home and try it.

In every package of LION COFFEE you will find a fully illustrated and descriptive list. No housekeeper, in fact, no woman, man, boy or girl will fail to find in the list some article which will contribute to their happiness, comfort and convenience, and which they may have by simply cutting out a certain number of Lion Heads from the wrappers of our one pound sealed packages (which is the only form in which this excellent coffee is sold).

Huxley and the Clergyman.

A rash clergyman once, without further equipment in natural history than some desultory reading, attacked the Darwinian theory in some sundry magazine articles in which he made himself uncommonly merry at Huxley's expense. This was intended to draw the great man's fire, and as the latter-ies remained silent the author proceeded to write to Huxley, calling his attention to the articles and at the same time, with mock modesty, asking advice as to the further study of these deep questions.

Huxley's answer was brief and to the point. "Take a cockroach and dissect it."—Argonaut.

EATING SUPERSTITIONS OF THE FIJIS.

The coasters of the Fiji islands will not eat until they can sit flat upon the ground directly over a triangle made of three small fish bones. Then they only handle the food with the left hand.

The inhabitants of the interior of the same islands will not partake of food while a cloud lies in the west, fearing that the Great Air Whale, whose bellowing (thunder) is often heard in that country, will pounce upon and utterly annihilate those for such irreverence.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?
(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

In the days of "wild cat" money in the West, the Ames shovels were used as currency. They were as stable as gold; their price did not vary a cent in twenty years. The very name of Oliver Ames & Son, was a synonym for honesty. It was current all over the world.

On the same principle Benson's Porous Plaster is the universal standard external remedy. To say it is a "good" plaster does not describe it; it is the best possible plaster. For every disease in which an external remedy is available, Benson's Plaster is used almost as a matter of course.

Benson's Plaster quickly relieves and cures where other modes of treatment are either exasperatingly slow or have no good effect whatever. Coughs, colds, lumbago, kidney trouble, rheumatism, lame back, etc., are of none benefited and soon cured.

Capsicum, Strengthening and Belladonna plasters have none of the curative virtues of Benson's. More than 5,000 physicians and druggists have commended Benson's Plaster as a remedy in which the public may have implicit confidence; while, in a comparative test with other plasters, Benson's has received fifty-five highest awards. Beware of substitutes and cheap imitations.

For sale by all druggists or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of $5c. each.

The Washington County Fiscal Court at its regular meeting this week fixed the tax levy as follows: Poll tax $1.50; 20 cents on every $100 worth of taxable property for general purposes and dirt roads; 22 cents on every $100 for turnpike purposes; 12½ cents for C. & O. railroads bonds and interest; 12½ cents for turnpike bonds and interest; 10 cents for turnpike certificates and interests; 8 cents for Tatham Springs bridge and turnpike.

As mentioned in the NEWS LEADER some time ago the financial affairs of the county are in a clearer and better condition now than for years This condition was brought about by a system suggested by County Attorney T. S. Mayes and left to him by the fiscal court to be carried out a duty which he has performed faithfully. As a result of this system about $28,000 of interest bearing indebtedness of the county has been cancelled without increasing the tax rate one cent. It seems passing strange that this same board of Magistrates should withdraw this confidence by refusing to endorse the County Attorney's propositions which are equally well meant for the benefit of the county's interest

Thomas Nicholas a young man aged twenty four died at his home near Harrodsburg on last Thursday night. Mr Nicholas was a man of fine appearance and very popular. The remarkable thing about him is that his heart was transposed being on the right side of his body His heart beat could be felt about the same distance on the right side of his body as it is from the left side in other people Notwithstanding this he had good health until his death which was very sudden. Mr. Nicholas was well known in this county where he has visited frequently and was a very intimate friend of W. F. Grigsby who furnishes us this bit of news.

Like Oliver Twist, children ask for more when given One Minute Cough Cure. Mothers endorse it highly for croup. It quickly cures all coughs and colds and every throat and lung trouble. It is a specific for grippe asthma and has long been well known for hooping cough. Haydon & Robertson.

The very appearance of Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve signifies that this remedy is new and original in itself. It is prepared especially for the eyes and is recommended for nothing else. The many miraculous cures of long standing that are being accomplished by its use emphasizes its importance as the greatest cure known for any and all kinds of sore eyes. Druggists sell it.

THE FISCAL COURT.

The Magistrates Meet and Have a Warm Time over the County's Deposits.

The regular April term of the Washington county Fiscal court was ghield on Tuesday of this week and a rather lively time was developed over the question of selecting a bank which was to receive the deposits of all money handled for the county by the treasurer. In the course of the proceedings considerable feeling of a more or less political complexion was exhibited.

Every two years when it becomes necessary to elect a county treasurer there is always a contest between the two banks to secure that place and likewise the business of handling the county's deposits which is considered worth a good deal to the bank. Mr. Robert Noe who has been serving for the past two years and who has been doing business for the county at the First National Bank was a candidate for re-election and it was thought that Mr. Burkare cashier of the Peoples Deposit Bank would also be a candidate but when the matter came up it developed that there was a different program mapped out. Mr Noe was elected treasurer without opposition and then the motion was made to give the deposits to the Peoples Deposit Bank. Mr. T. S. Mayes the County Attorney offered as a substitute to that motion that the deposits be given to the bank offering the most for them and argued his motion at some length. The record shows that two years ago the order was made directing that the deposits of the county should be awarded to the highest bidder and the county attorney and county treasurer were appointed a committee to receive sealed bids from the two banks. The Peoples Deposit Bank as shown by the report of the committee refused to submit a bid and the First National Bank bid $40 and was given the business. Mr. Mayes urged that the same method be adopted this year saying that he thought it probable that at least enough could be realized in that way to pay the county treasurer and that expense be saved to the taxpayers of the county. Squire Nimrod Hendren seconded Mr. Mayes motion and thought it the duty of the court to guard the interests of the taxpayers by saving every dollar possible of expense. The proposition however was voted down by Magistrates John S. Yankey, Ben Cambron. Sam Arnold and George Mayes. It was then proposed that the deposits be divided between the two banks but that plan was also voted down. The original motion to make the Peoples Deposit Bank the depository was then passed by the four magistrates mentioned above, they constituting a majority.

It is intimated that politics was a factor in the contest and if such be the case, it is unfortunate, for political prejudice frequently plays the mischief with the public's interest

HOW TO POLISH THE WINDOWS.

The action of the sun, moisture and the carbonic acid in the air on the soda or potash in the glass produces an opalescence more or less pronounced. To remove this wet the glass with diluted hydrochloric acid, and after a few minutes go over the glass with powdered whiting. Pour the acid slowly into the cold water, using four ounces of the acid to 12 ounces of water (a pint and a half). Polish with chamois or soft paper. It must be remembered that this acid will attack metals and should not be allowed to touch them, nor should the bottle be left open an instant longer than necessary, as the fumes are very destructive.—Ladies' Home Journal.

AN OLD FASHIONED PUDDING.

An old fashioned pudding which some housewives occasionally find acceptable to the family is made thus: Pour four cupfuls of boiling milk over two cupfuls of sifted Indian meal; add a cupful of molasses, a tablespoonful of melted butter, and set on the back of the range for an hour. Remove, and when cold beat in a half spoonful of salt, one of cinnamon, nutmeg, lemon and last six well beaten eggs. Then stir vigorously. Pour in a mold and boil for four hours. When ready to use, serve with a hard sauce.

THE GOODLY COMPANY.

A loyal heart for a loyal friend,
And love for those that love you;
A fearless soul to the journey's end,
Whatever skies above you;
A laugh for luck in the dawn's glad light,
And a song where the night shall find you,
And the voice you trust is brave and bright,
Though Fate ride fast behind you!

For loyal friends make a bold array,
And love is a charm to shield you,
And a fearless soul drives thoughts away
That to defeat would yield you.
And a laugh is a spell for gladsome cast,
And a song so strong that God you
Than the coward Fate, from then to last,
Rides shivering far behind you!

SHE WAS SARCASTIC.

Her Thanks Upon Getting a Seat in a Street Car.

Members of the smart set, going home from the theater, filled the Madison avenue car, and every one took the squeezing in the best possible humor. At one corner a fat young woman got on. She was dressed in fine style and evidently felt her own importance greatly. She managed to catch hold of a strap and, being almost suspended, as she was rather short. She swung right and left with every motion of the flying car and tried to bring herself into the genial company of people, who were nearly all friends, but all her advances toward an understanding with them bore no fruit, and she was left frigidly alone, for she did not seem to notice that her words were all addressed to the air.

At last, after she had stepped on everybody's feet and bumped up against everybody two or three times, a gentleman stood up from the seat where he had been reading with diligence all this time and said:

"Madam, you can have my seat."

Saying that, he lifted his hat and started out. She bowed and replied in a loud voice, so that every one to heard her, and said:

"Oh, thank you, kind sir. I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude—no one could—and all I can say is that I beg you to accept my most earnest thanks. I shall remember you in my prayers, for you are so generous."

By this time the man was red as a beet and could not escape until the car stopped. Nearly all the passengers were amused by the affair, but when he got to the door the woman had reached the seat and said loudly to everybody, "He might have taken it along, and it was so kind of him to leave it."—New York Herald.

AN ISLAND THAT CHANGES COLOR.

Think of an island that changes color every day—an island that vibrates between a bilious yellow and an aquamarine green. Such an island exists in the gulf of Mexico a day's sail from New Orleans; only a small island, with the greater portion of it a broad, low beach, which for a long time was quite mysterious in its complexion.

But the mystery has been solved, and, like all mysteries after careful investigation, it turns out to be a simple, easily understood phenomenon. The beach of this island should show the usual neutral sand tint, but it is not. Its color is to be expected, but why, after the tide had receded from it, it should begin to grow purple at the upper edge and continue to change to that color until the appearance of sand was entirely gone was the mystery, particularly to those who did not go near enough to see what made the change. It is all on account of millions of purple snails which crawl down the beach in the wake of the ebbing tide and again retreat as it begins to rise. Now this changeable bit of earth is known as a snail island.

OVERTOP YOUR BUSINESS.

A European traveler tells of the following epitaph which he read on a tombstone in England: "Here lies he was born a man, but died a grocer." The man had disappeared in his calling, so often in that of a man's vocation has swallowed him; that it has completely overwhelmed him; that there is nothing left of him for any purpose outside of his vocation.

It is a contemptible estimate of a vocation to regard it as the means of getting a living. The man who is not greater than his calling, who does not overtop his vocation, so that it runs over on all sides, is not successful. A man should be greater than the books he writes, greater than any speech he makes, than any house he builds or any sermon he preaches.—Success.

HIS IDEA OF MANKIND.

This is how Henry Labouchere once expressed his idea of humanity:

"I regard the entire human race as little animals fussing about on the rind of one of the millions on millions of globes that float in infinite space for a second or two of eternity and then disappear. Artificial distinctions between these little animals have no more significance to me than those between ants in the nest which the foot of some passerby sweeps out of existence."

HOW TO READ THE TONGUE.

The perfectly healthy tongue is clean, moist, lies loosely in the mouth, is round at the edge and has no prominent papillae. The tongue may be furred from local causes or sympathy with the stomach, liver, intestines or live. The dry tongue occurs most frequently in fever and indicates a nervous prostration or depression. A white tongue is diagnostic of the feverish condition, with perhaps a sour stomach. When it is moist and yellow brown, it shows disordered digestion. Dry and brown indicate a low state of the system, possibly typhoid. When the tongue is dry and red and smooth, look out for inflammation, gastritis or intestinal.

When the papillae on the end of the tongue are raised and very red, we call it a strawberry tongue, and that means scarlet fever. Sharp pointed red tongue will hint of inflammation, worm inflammation, and a yellow coating indicates liver derangement. When so much can be gained from an examination of the tongue, how important it is that everybody's feet and mouth should be taught to put it out so that it can be visible to the uttermost point in the throat!

WHAT "A" MEANS.

The expression "A 1," popularly used to designate articles of the first quality, is copied from the symbols of the British and foreign shipping lists of the Lloyds. "A" is used to designate the character of the condition of the hull of a vessel, the figure "1" to denote the efficient state of her anchors, cables and stores. If those are insufficient in quantity or quality, the figure "2" is used to indicate the same. When it is said of a ship or anything else that she or it "is A1," it means that such is first class in every respect.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

A Game That Is Full of Fun and Also Instructive.

Here is a game that will give young people as jolly a half hour as they could ask for. It may be called "the elements." The players are equally divided, with a captain for each side. The sides take seats opposite to each other, and one of the captains is chosen by lot to begin the game.

This he does by taking a knotted handkerchief and throwing it at one of the players on the opposite side, calling out at the same time "Earth!" "Water!" "Air!" or "Fire!"

If he calls "Earth!" the player into whose lap the handkerchief has fallen must name some quadruped before the captain can count ten; if he calls "Water!" the player must name a fish; if "Air!" he must name a bird, and if "Fire!" he must remain perfectly silent.

If a player fail to name an animal or name the wrong one or speak when he should remain silent, he drops out of the game, and the captain then takes the handkerchief and throws it at some one else on the player's side.

If, on the contrary, the player answers promptly, he must throw the handkerchief at some one on the opposite side, calling out one of the elements and counting ten, as the opposing captain had done.

The game goes on in this way until all the players on one side have dropped out, when, of course, the victory goes to their opponents.

This is a simple game, but it is full of fun from beginning to end. And it has its helpful features, too, for a successful player must be alert and quick witted and must have his tongue in a good training as his wits. Try the game—and plenty of it is made by the many minutes that the necessity for quick answering gives rise to.

TRAINED ANIMALS.

When you go to a trained animal show, watch carefully and you will see that the trainer always gives his animals some sign as well as the spoken command. They look for this sign more than for the word. Horses and mules must have this sign or "they won't play." The best trainers say that a mule has more intelligence than a horse, although the latter is more docile.

It is likely that the reason why birds are so difficult to train is because they have small brains. A woman once tried to teach an owl to wear a cap and spectacles and sit still behind an open book, but the job nearly drove her crazy, for it was too much for his reputed wisdom to learn even to do nothing.

A man that had one of the best collections of trained birds ever seen had for two years of the time an immense green parrot that walked a tight rope. How he taught it this trick was always a wonder until after his death it was found that the parrot was an automaton, moved by clockwork and balanced by weights.

A pig may be taught more tricks than any other animal. He may be taught to count, to select colors and to pick out people, but he probably obeys his master's signs in doing all this.—Little Chronicle.

ENGLISH KINGS AND QUEENS.

Now that Queen Victoria is dead and her son, Edward VII, is on the throne some one should revise the old rhyme about the kings and queens of England—a rhyme which doubtless many of the boys and girls have read. It used to appear in the books of 30 years ago, but it is a good thing even yet to know, especially if you are studying English history. Here it is:

First William the Norman,
Then William, his son,
Henry, Stephen and Henry
And Richard and John.
Next Henry the Third,
Edwards, one, two and three,
And again after Richard
Three Henrys we see.
Two Edwards, third Richard,
If rightly I guess;
Two Henrys, sixth Edward,
Queen Mary, Queen Bess.
Then Jamie the Scotchman,
Then Charles, whom they slew,
And again after Cromwell
Another Charles two.
Then Jamie the Second
Ascended the throne,
And good William and Mary
Together came on.
Queen Anne, Georges four,
And fourth William all past,
God save us Victoria;
May she long be the last.

A "LITTLE WOMAN" WAS LOST.

One day in Boston many years ago a little girl wandered away from home. She was missed and sought for everywhere in vain. At last her mother went to James Wilson, the city crier, and soon that official was going about the Boston streets ringing a bell and describing the little girl's dress and calling her name. "Child lost! Child lost!" he said again and again as he shook his big bell. The little girl was lying asleep in an alleyway, and, being awakened by the bell and the name, "Louisa Alcott!" she sprang to her feet and said sleepily, "That means me." And so it did. The little girl grew up and became the author of "Little Women" and other books and stories.—St. Nicholas.

Poison Proof Animals.

Neither differences of organization in animals nor in the constitution of the poisonous substance generally afford any clew for interpreting an exceptional want of effect. Unaccountable is the immunity of the cotton threads belladonna leaves (Atropa belladonna, deadly nightshade). You may feed them with belladonna for weeks without observing the least toxic symptoms. The meat of such animals, however, proves poisonous to any one who eats it, producing the same symptoms as the plant.

Pigeons and various other herbivora are also to some degree safe from the effects of this poison, while in warm blooded carnivora it causes paralysis and asphyxia. In frogs the effect is a different one, consisting of spasms. The meat of goats which had fed on hemlock has sometimes occasioned poisonous effects. Chickens are nearly hardy against nux vomica and the extremely dangerous alkaloid, strychnine, contained in it, while in the smallest amount it is a fatal poison to rodents.

More remarkable yet in this respect is the immunity of Chokepus hoffmanni, a kind of sloth living on the island of Ceylon, which, when given ten grains of strychnine, was not much affected. Pigeons are possessed of high immunity from morphine, the chief alkaloid of opium, as well as from belladonna. Eight grains were required to kill a pigeon, not much less than the mortal dose for a man. Cats are extremely sensitive to foxglove (Digitalis purpurea), while on the contrary may be given to rabbits and various birds in pretty large doses.

Fined For Death on Board.

"The only place, as far as law is concerned, where it costs money to die from natural causes is aboard a steamship," remarked a veteran owner. "The purpose of the law was excellent enough. There was a time when emigrants were being brought to this country in very large numbers, or by the shipload, as it was termed. There is no doubt that there was crowding in the ships that brought them, and to prevent this a law was passed imposing upon the master a fine of $10 for every death that occurred during the passage from natural causes of persons over 8 years of age. This put a stop to overcrowding, or, at least, it is supposed that it did, which is about the same thing. Ships do not fancy having to pay fines of this kind. "Of course, in comparison with the great army of persons who are brought across the ocean from month to month, there are very few deaths, for the statisticians have been kind enough to show beyond a doubt that the steamship is the safest means of transportation in existence, but, just the same, there are a considerable number in the course of a year."—Washington Star.

Epigrams in Fiction.

I always pray that I may never outlive my illusions or my front teeth, though all else may fall me.

Admiration is like porridge—awfully stodging when you are hungry again almost as soon as you've eaten it.

A good nose is an abiding resting place for vanity. You know that it will outlast your time and that age cannot wither nor custom stale its satisfactory proportions.

The quality of mercy should not be measured out by teaspoonfuls as a medicine glass, but should be sent round in a watering cart by the county council.

"Don't be so sense, men haven't the very best of them don't properly know the difference between their souls and their stomachs, and they fancy that they are wrestling with their bodies when really it is their dinners that are a-wrestling with them.

It is the duty of all women to look happy—the married ones to show that they don't wish they weren't married and the unmarried ones to show that they don't wish they were.—New York Telegram.

The Matter of a Semicolon.

A Russian military paper tells of a lieutenant who overheard a sergeant giving a recruit a short lecture upon his duties. "The military service," said the sergeant, "requires little prayer to God and a strict attention to the orders of a superior." Somewhat astonished at this singular definition of military duty, the officer ventured to ask the sergeant for his authority, whereupon the sergeant produced an ancient volume containing the following: "The military duty requires little prayer to God, and strict attention to the orders of a superior."—Army and Navy Journal.

A Precaution.

Husband (going to his rich uncle's funeral)—Put a couple of large handkerchiefs into my pocket, dear. The old gentleman promised to leave me £10,000, and I shall want to shed some appropriate tears.

Gates of the Land of Promise.

No one can watch a load of immigrants land without being struck by the astonishing signs of hope and confidence about them all. There has never been any exaggeration of this. Incredible as it may seem to one who knows how grim is the struggle for life among the masses in America, it is evident that this is still the land of promise to the poor of Europe.—Scribner's.

Simple Country Living.

A man may enjoy bounding health and know very little about the cause of his happiness, and, alas, a man may suffer all the woes of dyspepsia and have no certain knowledge as to the cause of his misery.

"I'm a confirmed dyspeptic. That's the reason I look so old," said Mr. Callander, gazing almost enviously at the red bronze face of his former chum at college, who had dropped down from the country into Mr. Callander's city office.

"What you need is simple country food, man," said his old friend, clapping him heartily on the shoulder. "Come and visit my wife and me on the farm for awhile, and we'll soon set you up. It's rich city living that's too much for you. Now, take breakfast, for instance. All I have is two good cups of coffee, a couple of fresh doughnuts, a bit of steak with a baked potato, some fresh biscuit or muffins and either griddle cakes or a piece of pie to top off with. What do you have?"

The city man looked at his red cheeked friend, who stood waiting for the confirmation of his idea.

"A cup of hot water and two slices of dry toast," he responded soberly. "But if you think a simple diet like yours would help me I will make one more attempt to be a healthy man."—Youth's Companion.

Joe Manton's Pistols.

Joe Manton, the famous gunmaker, was crossing Hounslow heath when he was stopped by a highwayman. On hearing the summons to "stand and deliver" Manton recognized a pistol of his own make leveled at his head. "Why, confound it, you rascal," cried the indignant gunmaker, "I'm Joe Manton, and that's one of my pistols you've got. How dare you try to rob me!" "Oh, you're Joe Manton, are you?" said the highwayman coolly. "Well, you charged me 10 guineas for this brace of pistols, which I call a confounded swindle, though I admit they're a good pair of barkers. Now I mean to be quits with you. Hand me over 10 guineas, and I'll let you go because you're Joe Manton, though I know you have got £50 at least about you."

Gorth swallowed his wrath and promptly paid the 10 guineas. But he never forgave the highwayman for getting a brace of his best pistols for nix, and he made himself a special double gun with barrels barely two feet long, which he always carried about with him afterward when traveling and which he called "The Highwayman's Master." With this weapon I have heard that he subsequently shot a highwayman who stopped his chaise and mortally wounded him.—"Kings of the Road, Rifle and Guns."

Then He Hurried Up.

He was too modest to be a successful lover, and he had let a dozen of his life go by without ever coming to an emotional point.

He was in love with a fair being of suitable age, but he would not tell her so, and though she knew it she could not very well give him a hint about the situation.

She was willing because she had arrived at that time of life when a woman is not nearly so hard to please as she might have been at some other time, but he was stupid and went away without a word.

Now he gone a long, long time, and then he came back he found her still ready.

"I have come back after many years," he said to her as he took her hand in greeting.

She had learned something in the years since she had seen him last.

"Well, for goodness' sake, Henry," she exclaimed fervidly, "why don't you take them? I'm 35 now. How many more years do you want?"

Then a great light shone upon him, and he did not wait for any more.—London Answers.

The Manufacture of Plate Glass.

The roaring table of a plate glass factory is about 20 feet long, 15 feet wide and 6 inches thick. Strips of iron on each side afford a bearing for the rolling and determine the thickness of the plate to be cast. The molten glass is poured on the table, and the roller passing from end to end spreads the glass to a uniform thickness. The glass, after cooling rapidly, is transferred to the annealing oven, where it remains several days. When taken out it is very rough and uneven and in that state is used for skylights and other purposes where strength is desired rather than transparency. The greater part of the glass, however, is ground, smoothed and polished.

Doesn't Count For Much.

"Lovely wedding, wasn't it?" asked the maid of honor.

"Quite so," admitted the bride's dearest enemy.

"Every detail perfect," suggested the maid of honor.

"Oh, I don't know. We might make an exception of the groom, don't you think?"

"Oh, possibly," admitted the maid of honor, "but that's a minor detail, anyway."—Chicago Post.

Heat of the Stars.

Experiments at the Yerkes observatory have led to certain results on the heat of the stars that may be summarized as follows: The apparatus employed was sensitive enough to register the heat received from a candle 15 miles distant. The heat received from Arcturus was equivalent to the heat received from a candle at a distance of about six miles.

The Difference.

A Legend of the Salty Sea.

There are hundreds of queer myths and traditions given to account for the fact that the sea is salty. One legend says that when the first pair sinned they were living in a beautiful garden on a tract of land joined to a mainland by a narrow neck or isthmus. When it became known to the Holy One that his people had sinned, he went to the garden for the purpose of driving them out and across the narrow neck of land into the patch of thorns and brambles on the other side. Anticipating what would be the consequence of their heinous crime, they had prepared to leave.

their beautiful garden and had actually gone so far as to send the children and some servants across into the thicket.

When the ship was in appeared on the scene, the first pair started to run, but the woman looked back. For this the man struck her and for such a crime was almost immediately turned into a block of salt. Compare with Genesis xix, 26. The woman, more forgiving than her husband, stooped to pick up the shapeless mass of salt, when immediately the narrow neck of land began to crack and break. As she touched the water, which, by the way, was turned to salt just as the land was, she turned to salt just as the land was, she turned to salt just as the land was, and the waters rushed through. From that day to this, the straits of the waters of the ocean have rushed through that narrow channel at least once a year, constantly wearing away the salt of what was once the woman's waters, yet the bulk of the two salty objects is not diminished in the least.

How General Butler Freed a Man.

General Butler's gift for springing out and taking advantage of every technicality was fully illustrated in the famous case of a respectably connected man in Boston, who, being affected with a mania for stealing, was brought to trial on four indictments. General Butler was the prisoner's counsel. If the prisoner was convicted on all four indictments, he would be liable to imprisonment for 60 years. As the prisoner's counsel General Butler agreed with the counsel for the prosecution that three indictments should be quashed on condition that the prisoner should plead guilty to the one which charged the theft of the greatest amount.

The prisoner, to his amazement, was sentenced by his counsel to plead guilty. "Say guilty, sir," said the general sternly. The man obeyed, and the other three indictments were not pressed. Then one of the counsel for the prosecution moved for sentence. General Butler pointed out a fatal flaw, manifest to every one when attention was called to it. In ten minutes the astonished prisoner was a free man. It is said that the court laughed at the ruse, the cleverness of which it was impossible not to admire.

Slandering the Cook.

Here is something that a woman who keeps a cook will find discussed at the table of the cook. If you have a good cook, you may be more or less sure that she will look too frequently upon the wine when it is red. It is an unfortunate fact, but if the cook is less than a $40 cook as little annoyance as possible may be expected from this weakness. Possibly it will never make itself manifest enough to be known above stairs. But if the cook has risen higher in the social scale of cooks than $40 a cook out. A cook who is rated at over $40 may be expected to smash things.

If one chances to make a morning call at the home of a friend and discovers the servants crowded up stairs, frightened and trembling, while from the lower floor are the sounds of frowsare skating across the kitchen and presently crashing against the wall and between times the voice of the masculine head of the family gently expostulating or commanding in would be stern tones, then it may be known that that household has reached the dignity of a $50 or $60 cook.—New York Times.

Huxley and the Clergyman.

A clergyman once, without further equipment in natural history than some desultory reading, attacked the Darwinian theory in some sundry magazine articles, and made it seem himself uncommonly merry at Huxley's expense. This was intended to draw the great man's fire, and as the batteries remain silent the writer proceeded to write to Huxley, calling his attention to the articles and at the same time, with mock modesty, asking advice as to the further study of these deep questions.

Huxley's answer was brief and to the point. "Take a cockroach and dissect it."—Argonaut.

Mrs. Edwin Cope, Gorman, Md., writes: "When I commenced using Wine of Cardui I was hardly able to walk across the room. Two weeks after I walked half a mile to my father's house. Many of my other child was born I suffered with labor pains 36 hours, and had to take him on a bottle because I had no milk. After using the Wine during pregnancy this time, I was with her only 3 hours, and she did not cry an hour only two hours, with but little pain, and has plenty of milk. Poison Oak Poison Ivy are among the best known of the many dangerous wild plants and shrubs. To botch or handle them quickly produces severe pain and inflammation with intense itching and burning of the skin. The eruption soon disappears, the sufferer hopes forever; yet almost as soon as the little blisters and pustules appeared the poison had reached the blood and will break out at regular intervals and each time in a more aggravated form. This poison will loiter in the system for months, even years, and it must be forced out of the blood before you can expect a perfect, permanent cure.

SSS Nature's Antidote FOR Nature's Poisons, is the only cure for Poison Oak, Poison Ivy, and all noxious plants. It is compounded exclusively of roots and herbs. Now is the time to get the poison out of your system, as delay makes your condition worse. Don't experiment with local salves, washes and soaps—they never cure.

Mr. S. M. Marshall, bookkeeper of the Atlanta Rail Road Co., was poisoned with Poison Oak. He took Sulphur, Arsenic and various other drugs, but instead of getting relief these poisons and salves with no benefit. At times the suffering and misery he endured was almost more than human nature could stand. For eight years the poison would break out every spring. His condition was much improved after taking one bottle of S. S. S., and a few bottles cured him entirely. He says that all evidences of the disease disappeared.

People are often poisoned without knowing when or how. Explain your case fully to our physicians, and they will cheerfully give such information and advice as you require, without charge, and we will send at the same time an interesting book on Blood and Skin Diseases.

of life time, causing irregularity, sleepless nights, headaches, and to every disease latent in bad cooking—or poor food; that's a summary of the traveling man's life. The result is "stomach trouble"; that general term which covers various forms and stages of disease of the organs of digestion and nutrition. The traveling man can't avoid the troubles which spring from his business obligations. But he can avoid "stomach trouble." If Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is used when the early symptoms of disarrangement of the stomach manifest themselves, the trouble will be quick and radical. But even if the disease has become chronic the "Discovery" will cure ninety-eight times out of a hundred of dyspepsia, however long standing, faithfully.

Mr. Phil Nelson, the celebrated local comedian of the company of Gus Hill's World Famous Specialty Co., Cambria, N. Y., writes: "We fulfilled an engagement of twelve weeks and the continual traveling gave me a bad touch of that dreaded disease of mine called dyspepsia. I tried everything possible to cure it till last month, when I was playing at E. F. Bond's Theater, Philadelphia, in the Nelson trio, a party of friends of mine advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and I can say, with good results.

Send Dr. Pierce's Common-Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, 700 illustrations, is sent free on receipt of stamps, to cover expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the same book cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

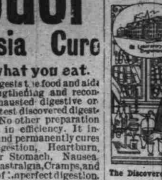
The Eminent Kidney and Bladder Specialist.



The Discoverer of Swamp-Root at Work in His Laboratory.

There is a disease prevailing in this country more dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the new discovery is the true specific for kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It has cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases, after all other efforts have failed.
